

Campus do Mar Conferences

Small-scale fisheries in Europe: a general overview

Monday, november 13th - 12:00h (CEST)

Edificio Miralles - Sala I - Campus Universitario de Vigo

or live streaming on campusdomar TV

WEB TV

13
NOV

12:00

Karim Erzini

Centre of Marine Sciences (CCMAR)

Small-scale fisheries (SSF), consisting of artisanal/professional and recreational components, are important socioeconomic activities across Europe. A wide variety of gears and métiers are found in Europe, with impacts at species, community and habitat levels. Due to the diversity in SSF and their generally multispecies nature, they represent particular challenges for management.

Currently, SSF are undergoing changes, driven by factors such as competition between commercial and recreational fisheries and by the requirements of the Common Fisheries Policy, including management based on Maximum Sustainable Yield (MSY), multi-annual management plans and ecosystem based principles. This talk will provide an overview of SSF in Europe, their impacts, the drivers of change and will make some recommendations for future management of coastal SSF.

How to follow the conference

You can watch the Campus do Mar conferences live everywhere you are through Internet, just connect to:

<http://tv.campusdomar.es>

<http://tv.campusdomar.es>